Journal of Garden History

AN INTERNATIONAL QUARTERLY

Edited by:
John Dixon Hunt

Editorial Address:
c/o I Curl,
Taylor & Francis,
4 John Street,
London WC1N 2ET, UK

Redesigned in 1993, the JOURNAL OF GARDEN HISTORY addresses itself to readers with a serious interest in the subject, and is now established as the main place in which to publish scholarly work on garden history. While the journal's main emphasis is on documentation of individual gardens in all parts of the world, articles on other topics — iconography, aesthetics, botany and horticulture, technology, social and economic history, conservation and restoration of historic gardens, geography, history of ideas — are welcomed. From time to time issues are centred around themes, for example, the Anglo-Dutch garden in the age of William and Mary, eighteenth-century gardens of the Chesapeake, and gardens of the Ancient Mediterranean, and rediscovering the British garden.

Readership Garden and cultural historians.

Between the Landscape and Its Other

Paul Vanderbilt

In this book, the pioneer of "iconography" explains and illustrates his most important ideas about visual images. Between the Landscape and Its Other features fifty pairings of Paul Vanderbilt's landscape photographs from the 1960s with archival photographs from the renowned collection he developed. In each case the images appear unrelated. But connections emerge intuitively—according to Vanderbilt, by the same unconscious process that organizes mental images into complex and revealing composites.

160 pages, 117 duotone photographs, $50.00 hardcover

We had no need to look to any distant, abstract turn, for all around, this home-grown peace was all we had to know.

FREDERICK LAW OLMSTED AND THE BOSTON PARK SYSTEM

Cynthia Zaitzevsky

Franklin Park, Woodland Path

"[This] book tells the story of a park system that was once perhaps the finest in the nation. It's full of scholarly history, yet readable and fresh, filled with illuminating maps and plans and with aching lovely period photographs of the magical places Olmsted created out of what had previously been, so often, dreary wastelands."

—Robert Campbell, Boston Globe

"One of the many merits of this clearly written, carefully documented, and handsomely illustrated [book] is that it represents a significant contribution to the relatively recent growth of two interrelated specializations: the historiography of landscape architecture and the practice of preservation, restoration, and adaptive reuse of historically significant landscapes." —Albert Fein, Landscape Journal

Trout Stream Therapy

Robert L. Hunt

Twenty-one successful, field-tested techniques for restoring healthy trout habitats in midwestern streams. An invaluable reference and field guide. Full-color illustrations and photographs throughout.

“Anyone interested in ensuring healthy trout streams will want to have this highly informative book. No other publication has made so much so easily understood”—Gary Borger

“The work will be important to professional biologists who work in Wisconsin and on streams elsewhere that resemble those Hunt describes. It will also appeal to lay persons, such as stream property owners, anglers, and members of conservation groups. . . . The books on this subject are few, and none that I know of accomplishes what this one does.”—Ray J. White, Ph.D., Private Fish Habitat Consultant, Edmonds, Washington

Letters from Alaska

John Muir

Edited by Robert Engberg and Bruce Merrell

During the years 1879 and 1880 John Muir traveled the waters of southeastern Alaska in a Tlingit Indian dugout canoe. Letters from Alaska follows Muir on these voyages in a series of articles he wrote for the San Francisco Daily Evening Bulletin. These “letters” are collected and republished here for the first time in more than a century, accompanied by an introduction and notes by Robert Engberg and Bruce Merrell.

“I never saw Alaska looking better than it did yesterday, when we bade farewell to Sum Dum and pushed on northward up the coast toward Tahkou. . . . Over the mountains and over the broad white-bosoms of the glaciers the sunbeams poured, rosy and warm as ever fell on a field of ripe wheat, drenching the forests and kindling the glassy waters of the bay and the icebergs in a perfect blaze of colored light. Every living thing seemed joyful, and nature’s work went on with enthusiastic activity. . . .”—John Muir

Prescribing the Life of the Mind

An Essay on the Purpose of the University, the Aims of Liberal Education, the Competence of Citizens, and the Cultivation of Practical Reason
Charles W. Anderson

In the midst of factions at war in today’s universities, Charles W. Anderson argues that the development of the capacity for practical reason can provide a unifying focus for the educational mission of the university and an integrating theme for the liberal arts curriculum.
