Ecological Restoration

ASLA Communications Award Winner

Ecological Restoration is honored to accept the ASLA Communications Honor Award, as a forum that showcases design work in partnership with ecology and restoration.

The journal has a new feature, Design Approaches to Ecological Restoration. This section showcases a landscape architect's project design with significant ecological components, followed by a critique from ecologists. The dialogue asks: Does the design meet its stated ecological goals? In what ways could the landscape architect improve ecological services consistent with the design intent? How can similar future projects better advance ecological functions? This new forum provides a vital meeting ground for the both professions.
