New From The Cultural Landscape Foundation®

CITY AND REGIONAL ONLINE GUIDES AND PRINTED GUIDEBOOKS

Explore seventeen different city guides, including the newest for Boston and San Francisco. Derived from TCLF's online What's Out There database, a repository of more than 2,200 sites and 1,200 designer profiles, the guides are designed to evolve over time as more sites are added to the database. They also include overarching narratives, maps, historic and contemporary photographs, and concise essays about each locale.

PAMELA BURTON IS THE SUBJECT OF A NEW PIONEERS OF AMERICAN LANDSCAPE DESIGN® ORAL HISTORY

Santa Monica-based Pamela Burton was influenced by Modernist and contemporary architects, artists, and landscape architects throughout her decades-long career. She is a prolific designer of residential, commercial, and civic landscapes, many in Southern California. Her designs are influenced by the site and native plant palette, a wide range of guiding principles from California modernism to wabi-sabi, her love of art, and sustainability. Notably, Burton designed the grounds of several homes by architect Richard Neutra.

In 2021, Race and Space will focus on long neglected and largely unknown cultural landscapes associated with African Americans and others. Each report includes newly commissioned photographs, historical images, site plans, other archival materials and video interviews. The deadline for nominations is June 15, 2021.
