

The Papers of Frederick Law Olmsted

Volume V: The California Frontier, 1863-1865

edited by Victoria Post Ranney, Gerard J. Rauluk, and Carolyn F. Hoffman

At the age of forty-one, Frederick Law Olmsted went West to manage the Mariposa gold-mining estate in California. Volume V collects Olmsted's writings from this critical time in his career. His letters and journals reveal his thoughts about civilizing the frontier and improving American society. The volume also contains reports on Olmsted's four major landscape design projects in California: Yosemite Valley and Mariposa Big Tree Grove, a park system for San Francisco, Mountain View Cemetery in Oakland, and the campus of the University of California at Berkeley.

Gardens Make Me Laugh

A New Edition

James C. Rose

Renowned designer James Rose offers a satirical, sometimes offensive, but always illuminating look at the art and business of landscape design. His insights are based on an acute awareness of physical beauty and the rightness of things. Spontaneous, irreverent, and insightful, Gardens Make Me Laugh is a classic waiting to be rediscovered.

Back to Nature

The Arcadian Myth in Urban America

Peter J. Schmitt

foreword by John R. Stilgoe

From wilderness novels to scenic turnoffs, Peter J. Schmitt describes the many ways in which America's urban middle class became involved with nature from the turn of the century to shortly after World War I. "A thorough and entertaining exploration of the presence of a significant theme regarding community in popular culture."

Siftings

Jens Jensen

foreword by Charles E. Little afterword by Darrel G. Morrison

As celebrated landscape architect Jens Jensen "sifts" through a lifetime of ideas about gardens, towns, cities, and parks, he makes an eloquent case for a natural style of American landscape architecture — a style that established him as an important member of the "Prairie School."

The Rough Road to Renaissance

Urban Revitalization in America,
1940-1985

Jon C. Teaford

Focusing on the "view from City Hall," Jon Teaford describes efforts in twelve older central cities in the Northeast and Midwest to achieve revitalization. He considers city politics and municipal finance, as well as environmental, transportation, rehabilitation, and reconstruction programs undertaken to create better cities and to close the widening competitive gap with suburbia.

LANDSCAPE RESEARCH

Journal of the Landscape Research Group

LANDSCAPE RESEARCH (I.S.S. No. 0142-6397) takes a broad and inclusive approach to the subject of landscape. It addresses the concerns of a range of academic disciplines and professions, and caters for readers who wish to maintain a wide interest in landscape and to keep abreast of current thinking and research. It is published three times a year, in January, May and September, and is mailed free of charge to all members of LRG.

The Journal contains research papers, articles, reviews and correspondence on such subjects as:

- * Landscape perception
- * Landscape assessment
- * Design, planning and management of landscape
- * Landscape conservation
- * Landscape and the arts
- * Landscape history
- * Environmental psychology
- * Cultural interpretation of landscape

Theme issues of the journal are published regularly. The following are some that have appeared in recent years:

- |   |               |                                       |              |

|   |               | * Urban Parks                         | 8 (ii) 1983  |

LANDSCAPE RESEARCH EXTRA, also published by LRG, is a more topical and informal publication than the journal, and includes news and comment, reviews, and a section on recent articles and books on landscape. Like the journal it comes out three times a year and is sent free to all LRG members.

The Landscape Research Group was founded in 1967 to foster collaboration and interdisciplinary exchange between people with a shared interest in landscape. It is a voluntary association based in Britain but with a world-wide membership. As well as publishing the above publications it holds a regular programme of conferences and promotes research into landscape issues. Its membership includes planners, geographers, conservationists, ecologists, landscape architects, environmental psychologists, artists and cultural and literary historians. It is a registered charity and a Limited Company. Further details and a full list of publications are available on request.

Landscape Ecology

by Richard T. T. Forman
and Michel Godron
ISBN 0-471-87037-4

Carl Steinitz, in the foreword of "Landscape Ecology" describes this book as being of "great interest and value to planners, designers and managers of our land resources, whose actions must be understood from the perspectives of many natural systems, with particular attention to spatial and temporal impacts." He further states that this ground-breaking book impels us in the direction of a more comprehensive understanding of the spatial dynamics of landscape. It is a best seller in the American Society of Landscape Architects bookstore.

COMMON LEGUMES OF THE GREAT PLAINS

AN ILLUSTRATED GUIDE

By James Stubbendieck and Elverne C. Conard
Illustrated by Bellamy Parks Janson

This is the first illustrated guide to the legumes to be found in 13 central plains states and three Canadian provinces. Common Legumes of the Great Plains presents keys to the families, genera, and species of these plants, describing the life span, origin, and height of each, as well as their stems, leaves, flowers, and fruit. Included are distribution maps and botanical illustrations for the 106 most common and important species. Relative habitat and abundance are discussed, and so are seed production, means of establishment, landscape value, and erosion control characteristics. Based on modern taxonomy, the book contains an index and glossary. It is certain to become a standard reference of value to the rancher, farmer, and naturalist as well as to the botanist and taxonomist. $35.00

Aldo Leopold

His Life and Work

Curt Meine

Aldo Leopold is unique in the degree to which his life and work continue to exert influence on those who are concerned with the quality of our natural environment. This book is written for those who wish to understand this unusual and gifted man better, as well as for those who wish to gain greater insight into the evolution of the American landscape. The first comprehensive biography, it will stand as definitive for years to come.

"This is a story well worth reading and, happily, it's good fun to boot. The author has skillfully captured Leopold the man, the scientist, the philosopher—furthermore, anyone who begins to read it will soon be captured, too."

—Gaylord Nelson
The Wilderness Society

"... the core of American thinking about conservation runs from Thoreau to Muir to Leopold . . . Leopold is the most significant conservationist of the last seventy years; and this is the first full-scale biography, the first to make such extensive use of the Leopold papers. Thus it makes available reams of material that can be found nowhere else. There is no other book like this one."

Companion to A Sand County Almanac

Edited by J. Baird Callicott

Praised by the New York Times for its "high quality" and by Sierra for being "first rate," this collection of articles, written by the leading scholars of Leopold and environmental ethics, represents the first sustained look at Leopold's seminal book as a work of art, philosophy, and social commentary. It will enrich the general reader's appreciation of a favorite literary friend while it provides new information and thoughtful analysis for environmental scholars, managers, and planners.

"J. Baird Callicott does for this contemporary vademecum what Philip Van Doren Stern's The Annotated Walden did for Thoreau's great work. Roderick Nash pursues Leopold's intellectual heritage. Susan Flader details the history of Leopold's woodland hideaway. Wallace Stegner analyzes the legacy of what he calls an 'almost holy book.' The authority of these and other contributors both confirms its subject's centrality to 20th-century thought and marks the study itself as vital to a wider understanding of its birth."
